FOREWORD

The Calendar of Expiring Agreements is a compilation of major collective agreements in British Columbia which are scheduled to expire in the coming year. The publication includes those expiring agreements which cover 25 or more employees.

The total number of agreements and employees covered by expiries listed in the Calendar likely understates to some extent the bargaining activity to be expected during 1989. First, it is not possible to anticipate bargaining which will arise from first-contract negotiations where a trade union has been newly certified by the Industrial Relations Council. Second, at the time data for the Calendar was being assembled in November 1988, a number of collective agreements were in the process of being re-negotiated. Some of these renewed agreements will likely expire in 1989 but at the time of the publication it was not known which of them will be up for negotiation again in the coming year. A revised list of upcoming expiries is published each month in Collective Bargaining Information which is available from Crown Publications in Victoria.

The information contained in the Calendar was compiled by Sharon Churchill and was typed by Barbara Kirby of the Policy and Legislation Branch. Our thanks are extended to employers and unions who co-operated in providing expiry information to the Branch.

INTRODUCTION

A total of 305 major collective agreements covering 25 or more employees will expire in British Columbia during the calendar year 1989. These expiries cover 121,282 employees in the province. The numbers of scheduled expiries is lower than the number reported in the 1988 calendar (385) and covers significantly fewer employees than did last year's list of expiries (211,930).

Negotiations in the Health Care field result in the largest contract expiries during 1989. The Health Labour Relations Association (HLRA) collective agreements with the Hospital Employees' Union, the Health Sciences Association and the B.C. Nurses' Union covering 18,827, 4,181 and 17,000 employees, respectively, all expire on March 31. A number of other important health care agreements also expire at the same point. In other industries, the largest expiry covers B.C. Telephone and 11,000 members of the Telecommunications Workers' Union whose agreement expires December 31. Other larger agreements expiring during 1989 include the Fish Processing Bargaining Association and the UFAWU, B.C. Hydro agreements with the IBEW and OTEU, a B.C. Transit agreement with ICTU, and a number of mining industry collective agreements.

As is shown by Table 1, nearly one-half of the collective agreements expiring during the coming year were for a three-year term. This, perhaps, reflects the noticeable lengthening of contracts during the past several years as the parties seek some longer term stability. By contrast the number of one-year agreements among those expiring in 1989 numbered only 12 and covered 10,078 employees.

By month, March and December are those in which the largest numbers of collective agreements are scheduled to expire. March has 94 expiries, nearly one-third of the annual total, while 53 agreements expire in December. In terms of employees affected, the March expiries cover 65,900 employees while the December expiries will affect 20,422 employees.

Examining the expiry information by industry shows that the Community Services sector with 90 contract expiries and the Manufacturing sector with 89 contracts expiring during 1989 will be the most active this year. The former covers 54,995 employees while the latter agreements affect 16,337 employees.

In Table 3 of the Calendar, the user will find a chronological list of 1989 expiries by month, while Table 4 has individual expiries listed by industrial sector.

Following is a list of major collective agreements due to expire during 1989 that cover 500 or more employees.
